Overview

Rural Property with Development Potential and Extensive Olive and Almond Groves

An opportunity to acquire a substantial rural property surrounded by the natural landscape of inland Andalucía. The land is home to approximately 1,000 olive trees and 1,000 almond trees, creating an established agricultural setting with considerable character and potential.
Construction work has already commenced on the property, offering a prospective buyer the opportunity to take over an existing project and develop it further according to their plans, subject to the necessary permissions and approvals.

The combination of extensive land, mature trees and an unfinished construction project makes this an interesting opportunity for buyers looking to create something of their own in a peaceful rural environment.

Further information regarding the property, existing construction and project documentation is available upon request.
